Dear Eliza,

As we are gearing up for the Australian Event Awards and Symposium, I wanted to take a moment to congratulate you on your efforts, and thank you for participating in the program.

Every entrant plays an important role in the progression and advancement of our industry. By taking the time to not only execute outstanding events, but then to reflect upon them in great detail throughout the entry process and encourage a culture of advancement by entering, entrants are essential contributors to our industry's ongoing development and achievement. The Event Awards aims to encourage excellence and innovation, which can only be maintained by continued reflection, promotion and celebration of the work of the entrants – in short, the program is nothing without you. Thank you for taking part.

The judges were astounded this year by how strong all of the entries were in creating clear, vibrant images of events achievements that generated a sense of excitement and pride. The innovative thinking and execution of the achievements themselves were as impressive as the well-crafted entries.

So of course that means it was a particularly tough competition! The work you've done in the events sphere in this past year is highly commendable, and worthy of recognition. The achievements you described in your entry are indeed inspiring, and the judges report taking great joy in studying all the hard work done by the industry this year, even if not everyone can take home a trophy.

From the Australian Event Awards team, the judges and partners, congratulations for your strong entry and the commitment you have demonstrated to the events industry. We hope that you can take the judges feedback on board and continue to be an exemplar in what you do, and we encourage you to enter your future events achievements next year.

If you're not attending the Awards ceremony, we invite you to follow the live webcast on our home page www.eventawards.com.au to see who takes home the trophies, and to perhaps inspire some friendly competitiveness for your next entry!

Congratulations again, thank you, and all the very best.

Kind regards,
